*concise descriptive summary for the center:

Due to the high incidence of digestive diseases, including gastrointestinal cancers and Helicobacter pylori, etc. in Ardabil province, the Digestive Disease Research Center of Ardabil University of Medical Sciences has been operating since the beginning of 2017 with the aim of conducting basic and applied research in the field of digestive diseases based on the needs of the community. On 01/11/2020, the final approval was reached to establish the Digestive Disease Research Center at Ardabil University of Medical Sciences.

The Digestive Disease Research Center is a group of experts in matters related to digestive diseases who work in the field of controlling the aforementioned diseases, including expanding the fields of knowledge, epidemiology, diagnostic and treatment methods, and identifying risk factors, especially in the field of stomach and esophageal cancers, which are among the high-risk areas in the country and even in the world.
